The 2004 Columbia River/Willamette Valley CFC

Annual Report

Local Employee Giving Still Strong in a Challenging Year

Federal employees in the Columbia River/Willamette Valley Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) once again demonstrated their generosity and dedication to public service. Over 6,000 colleagues in Oregon and SW Washington offered $1.49 million to approximately 1,000 local, national and international charities. This was the second-most ever raised in our region, following only the record 2003 campaign.

While our local economy has recovered somewhat recently, many of our neighbors continue to suffer with hunger, homelessness and unemployment. Cutbacks in government assistance to schools and health care have placed many individuals and critical programs in peril. Our military families continue to struggle as National Guard members respond to their call to service. Natural disasters have taken their toll on hundreds of thousands worldwide.

In response to these difficulties, you have come through yet again to help build stronger communities.

Thanks to the hundreds of volunteers who made the 2004 campaign a special one: the campaign coordinators and their agency teams, who planned campaigns, Transportation Security Administration CFC Coordinator Craig James hands a pledge form to Director Robert Jackson. TSA was up 54% in number of donors and 99% in dollars and over 2003.

distributed materials and inspired others; the Leadership Team, who set the direction for the campaign; the CFC Specialists, who helped collect contributions; the agency directors, who endorsed the campaigns; the CFC video production crew from the VA Medical Center; and the management staff at the Principle Combined Fund Organization. Most importantly, thanks to the donors for opening your hearts and giving of your time, talents or resources to benefit others through the CFC.
